ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image processing device which improves the transmission of image data over a low bandwidth network by extracting foreground information and encoding it at a higher bit rate than background information.

5